Hood's Sarsaparilla which expels all humors, cures all eruptions, and builds up the whole system, whether young or old.

Everything here is moving in a progressive way.

There was preaching Sunday by J. L. White and a Sunday school was organized.

The cold weather we had recently killed most of our apples and peaches. There will perhaps be a fourth of a crop.

We will live in hopes that we will have a full crop next year.

The timber had commenced to put out but got killed. The young growth or maples have commenced to grow and the old cows to rattle their bells and the turkeys to gobble and me to slip out with a gun. You can guess what is up.

Wonder what was the matter with Bill Thomas last week that he wanted to run.

Mrs. R. J. White went to the creek after water and her foot slipped and she fell in. She went to the middle of the creek and like to have not got out for every time she would get up her foot would slip and down she would go.

NOTICE.

Whitwell, Tenn., April 13, 1904.

To whom it may concern:

My business interest makes it necessary for me to move my law library from Whitwell to South Pittsburg within the near future and I will spend a large part of my time at that place.

However, I will be in Whitwell a part of the time, and I now take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the loyal and almost undivided support (in a business way) the people of Whitwell and surrounding vicinity have given me since I came here five years ago. I was almost an entire stranger to you all. For some reason you trusted me from the beginning, and during all the time that I have been here you have given me your business without regard to social relations or political affiliations. This I certainly appreciate, and I will be pleased to continue to do business for any who desire it to do so.

You will have free telephone connection with my office. If you need my services call me.

With my most profound thanks for past favors, and with best wishes for all,

I remain as ever,

Keep Away From There.

H. G. Evans, of Whitwell, who has been to Coal City, Ga., in search of work, informs us that a union miner, or any miner in fact, who cares about working in a fit place, should keep away from Coal City. He says that the ventilation is bad, and the mines ill-drained, and unless a man is satisfied to work under the same conditions as the convicts formerly employed there should give the place a wide berth. He further says that the superintendent of the Montvale mines says he will not employ a member of the United Mine Workers organization.
